About This Game

Ramto isn't the smartest guy in the Universe. He enjoys finding troubles - and solving them, but when woke up on a spaceship it was too much even for him. Alone on the ship he had no idea how to pilot, among heaps of weird devices created by a schizophrenic engineer.

Tardy is a quest about fiddling with computers, terminals gadgets and other hi-tech scrap of all sorts. Deal with crazy machines, solve the mystery of the crew disappearance and help Ramto to come back home!

- Do you like conspiracy theories? Start making them up then! The crew is gone, the ship seems to hate you, the Galaxy is engulfed by war and is teeming with traitors.
- Haven't cried for a while? You're going to see children dying, characters murdered, and the ending will make you weep (well, not all of you, but still).
- Feel carsick wearing VR-glasses? You won't need them to immerse into the game. All the buttons, switches and terminals are as good as real.
- Enjoy playing quests but tired of find-the-item and run-around-the-location things? If you don't want to combine banana peel to a hammer in your inventory, Tardy is the game you've been looking for!

- Pixel art still doesn't make you cry blood? Wonderful! Moreover, ours is pleasing to the eye. Just like our music is pleasing to the ear.
  - Tardy costs a bit more than the average sandwich. We can't believe you haven't bought it yet!

I'll not prolong myself. Sometimes we gamers and developers are not open to new experiences, we often avoid anything that isn't "player-friendly", but doing this we close ourselves to experience other kinds of emotions. Eternal return is one of those games that try to achieve something different, something that defies the norm. The lack of polishing works in its favor, creating a world that is hard even to move around. If it was the intention of the creator to create this feeling or he just accidentally did this, we may never know for sure. In my opinion, Eternal Return ask a question to us " Do we really love video games as a media for any kind of experience, or we just love to be spoon fed and gain instant gratification?"

If your answer is the first one, then you should play this game.. The game is not bad, it's pretty much a "meh" puzzle adventure.

The puzzles weren't blatantly easy, which is always a plus, but the biggest challenge didn't seem to come from figuring the puzzles out, but in the mechanics to interact with the puzzles. If a puzzle took me a bit to get it was because the mouse controls didn't respond properly.

The biggest negative to the game, however, is that there is no ending. When you finish the last puzzle you are just sent to the main menu screen with a "Thanks for playing" message. I know these kinds of games are short, but there should at least be a small payoff for beating the game.. Steel Rats has nice enough graphics, meh story and mediocre voice acting. It also has terrible controls, bad physics and it's laggy as heck. It's really too bad that the devs didn't get it right, it could have been a really good game. Not recommended. Let the red rose of blood bloom forth.. The game is poorly optimized (my card is GTX 680). laggy and framedrop make it unplayable. Do not buy until it is fixed.. A set of four equally nice, neatly made (in every aspect) time managers. Slightly diversified (with new game play features, bonuses and surprises) to make each game a bit different, while keeping enough in common with the previous one(s), which shortens waste of time and nerve on mastering the next game, that's valuable. Repetative, yet it feels all right here, can't remember myself being driven into bore even once. I beat all four games 100% on expert difficulty and still wouldn't mind to see the fifth. Taken into account the fact that games like these are not my idea of fun (or they weren't at least))) - what better recommendation could i give to a game. If you are looking for a highly involving and entertaining, not all that hard yet challenging enough game - check this one. Probably you will be pleased even beyond your expectations.

at the beginning i couldn't figure out the login credentials and it was frustrating tbh. couldn't think that it was that obvious. other than that, great puzzle game.. I played this with a friend today and we loved it.
10/10 You should get this right now!. I DO NOT recommend this game because the controls are hard to use. When you turn, you turn completely around and that is annoying. I recognize that this game is new so I may edit this review if the game improves. This game is also a asset flip of Racing Game Template on Unity.. Totally worth the 10 cents with the -90% coupon. Otherwise... I mean if you got money.. its a decent time killer.. in case you get sick of killing stuff, you can kill yourself instead.. Short, but interesting aesthetic game. Worth the buy and play.

Procedurally generated tracks will be way more awesome!:

Another batch of changes is out in closed beta!

v0.10.0 (major changes in track generation and campaign cash balancing)

- Generation algorithms will produce more exciting tracks

. V1.026:

- Removed 20 min limit when finding music
- Other bug fixes / tweaks. Build Update v0.5.1 - Including Cinematics and MORE!:
Hello everybody!

Hope you're having a wonderful (and/or terrific) Sunday!

We have some news for you >:)

First of all, remember that next Wednesday we'll be FINALLY releasing the full version of the game (1.0), including the last Act 3: The Temple!

But today we have a quick update for you!

This one includes a few cinematics inside the game. Here are some shots:

http://www.doorwaysgame.com/External/Steam/Chapter4/v0.5.1/Highres/cinematics\_01.jpg

We also improved performance and updated the game to the last stable version of Unity (5.4).

We also made a lot of fixes from the feedback we received from you guys at the forums :)

And finally added a new Relic you to the current maps... Where is it? You should find it out!

http://www.doorwaysgame.com/External/Steam/Chapter4/v0.5.1/Highres/new\_relic.jpg

So if you want to get ready on Wednesday, you can replay to watch the cinematics and to find the new Relic which also will be necessary to get all the achievements ;)

By the way, have you seen the new 360 images? You can check them out by clicking on these ones directly on Facebook:
